

SRUJAN: A PLATFORM FOR ACADEMIC INTERLOCUTION

Objectives of the Practice

- a. To map out a broad avenue of study, research and interlocution for the students and teachers under one abode
- b. To help the learners to overcome the indolence of ignorance
- c. To organize various interdisciplinary programmes collectively to enrich the edifice and subject matter of each discipline

The Context

Value based and quality education tends to enhance the hidden qualities of the learner and also firm up the overall competency at their own pace. Every student aspires to achieve excellence in their own academic discipline, but sometime the coarse realities of competitive world, impede them to ascend the height of success. In the light of this reality there is need of a platform to correlate academics with the objective realities of the world.

The Practice

All departments are given liberty to decide on the programme/s that they would like to organise. It is really noteworthy that almost all the departments both from aided and self-financed sections regularly come together to hold at least one programme. Each department is assigned a specific day and time to hold their programmes. All the departments organized around 50 programmes during this week. The college witnessed programmes as diverse as lectures on DNA printing, Mindfulness, clean shore initiatives, stocks and shares, popular physics to management games, quizzes, talks, exhibitions and films shows.

Evidence of Success

An interdisciplinary academic forum like SRUJAN has offered the students a wide ranging opportunity to harmonize their academic discourse with an objective perspective. The response of the students and teachers has proved that this activity has a potential to expand the horizons of the imagery of students' intellectual cognition as well as teachers academic potential.
